What is claimed is:

2. A visually managed system to be used by a housing developer/builder and home buyer/client to communicate the different placements, options and styles of the components of a home. By incorporating visually distinctive and identifiable indicia on components of the home a developer/builder will be able to inform any buyer/client of options available. By incorporating corresponding visually distinctive and identifiable indicia on a check off sheet to be given to buyer/client a developer/builder will be giving the buyer/client a means to easily inform the developer/builder of options selected by buyer/client.

3. The components and check off sheet in claim 2, wherein said indicia is further defined as comprising one selected from the group of colors, designs, brochures, pictures, alpha-numeric and numeric designations.

4. The system includes measurements, directions and photos for placement of indicia to assist developer/builder in their use.

5. The system includes a set of standards, measurements, descriptions and drawings to be used by housing developers/home builders in the construction of homes.

6. The system includes standards, measurements; descriptions and drawings used to increasing the accessibility throughout a home for the home buyer/client.

7. Using markers placed in the comfort zones allows individuals to choose the location, depth and height of components of the home.
